

ABSTRACT OF DISCLOSURE

A method and apparatus detecting binary data from a signal read from an optical recording medium are provided. The apparatus detecting binary data includes a first signal processor nonlinearly converting the input signal based on the result of comparing an absolute value and a predetermined critical value of the input signal and a second signal processor detecting binary data from the nonlinearly converted signal.